Suicide Prevention and Social Media: What we Know and What We Don't

Dr. Christine Moutier, will help us make sense of the current body of data regarding risk of suicide among our youth and young adults, the rise in the rate of teen and young adult death due to suicide, and specifically, how we can use what is known about the impact of social media in our work to identify, address and reduce risk. What are the conversations that we should be having with youth and young adults and how do we frame those conversations? In addition, Dr. Moutier will discuss cyberbullying and risk of suicide.

Cynthia Kaplan, Ph.D.

Blaise Aguirre, MD

The Connection Between Childhood Sexual Abuse and Suicide

Although the association between Childhood Sexual Abuse (CSA) and suicidality is well-documented, the mechanisms for this association have historically been poorly understood. In their talks, Drs Kaplan and Aguirre will examine the manner in which CSA history relates to known risk factors for suicidal behavior. Specifically, they will look at the development of psychiatric symptoms in CSA survivors and how the development of psychiatric disorders, in turn, impact the beliefs and behaviors of individuals in a manner that can increase the likelihood of both self-harming and suicidal behaviors.

12:15 - 1:15 - LUNCH INCLUDED

1:30 - 3:00 Afternoon Workshops:

A) Addressing Grief of Suicide Loss Survivors: Essentials in Prevention and Postvention Efforts

Presenters: Diane Sweet, LCSW Psychotherapist/ Consultant and Jamie Bogenschutz LCSW, CASAC, B.C.E.T.S. Executive Director, YES Community Counseling Services

It has been recognized that suicide loss survivors are at greater risk of complicated grief reactions, increased mental health disturbances and/or future risk of suicide as they struggle to come to terms with their loss. This workshop will look at grief as it manifests itself in the aftermath of suicide loss. Presenters will focus on the importance of addressing grief in prevention and postvention work, identifying how grief reactions differ when working with adults and children, and examining how complicated grief reactions manifest with suicide loss survivors.

B) Lethality Assessment and Safety Planning from a Crisis Center Perspective

Presenters: Theresa Buhse, MEd, Associate Executive Director Long Island Crisis Center and Lorraine Peragallo, Director of Development Response Crisis Center

Join this workshop for practical information and hands on application related to assessing the lethality level of a person who may be thinking about suicide. Learn what to do, and what to say during the intervention, and gain knowledge of safety planning as a tool for supporting the person with their immediate and long term safety.

C) The Emerging Adult (ages 18-26): Their Unique Mental Health Needs and Risk Factors for Suicide.

Panel Facilitator: Linda Sherlock-Reich, LMFT Assessment & Advocacy Specialist Catholic Charities Housing Department

In this facilitated panel discussion we will explore the newly developing awareness of the 'Emerging Adult' as a distinct developmental stage with unique characteristics and needs. Our panel will represent a diverse group of professionals who serve this population and get their perspectives on effective strategies, treatments and approaches.

D) The Lethality of Loneliness

Presenters: Meryl Cassidy, Executive Director, Response Crisis Center and David Close, PsyD, Deputy Director LIFO OMH

This workshop will explore the social science and neuroscience of chronic loneliness and how it impacts crisis work, including ways it links to suicide risk. We will also look at the vital role we as helpers play in connecting with those most isolated among us.

E) Comprehensive Risk Assessment and Management for Youth

Presenter: Max Banilivy, Ph.D. WellLife Network

Given that for every youth who kills himself/herself there are 10-15 attempts, learning the basic components of risk assessment and management is essential. Participants will explore the following:

- Who is at risk
- Warning and risk factors
- Proximal and distal variables
- Essential elements of collaborative work with youth
- Importance of team approach to managing risk
